Class

Class will consist of lecture and discussion on topics related to the text. Questions and comments during class time are strongly encouraged. The majority of class time during the semester will be devoted to learning and practicing programming techniques, theories and collaboration. It is expected that students will have read the assigned chapters prior to the related class period. It is also expected that students will spend at least 3 hours in outside programming and/or study for each class period. The instructor will ask questions of the students to ensure that learning is taking place.

Quizzes
Quizzes will be given to determine whether students are reading the material. Quizzes will be used as a part of grade determination.

Projects
There will be bi-weekly programming assignments which will be part and parcel of the course project. The objectives will include such things as database schema tasks, development environments, unit-tests, etc... The final project will be run as close as possible to a real-world software engineering project using n-tiered web technologies with ASP.NET. This will account for the majority of the grade.

Cheating
Cheating on assignments, quizzes or the project will not be tolerated and will result in a failing grade.

Grading

Please note that this scale applies ONLY to the final grade, and not to individual assignments, quizzes or projects which are point based. (The difference between a 79 and an 80 on a test is the same as the difference between an 80 and an 81, i.e. one point.)
